

The CJNR Editorial Board has modified the Journal's publication schedule so that each volume will fall within the calendar year. The Journal will continue to be published on a quarterly basis. Beginning in 2003, issue no. 1 will be published in March, followed by issues 2, 3, and 4 in June, September, and December. Due to this change, we are able to grant an extension on several expired deadlines for calls for papers.

CJNR Special Issue: Completed Student Research Projects December 2002 (vol. 34, no. 4)

The December 2002 issue of CJNR will highlight the work of the next generation of researchers. Papers describing completed research from either undergraduate or master's programs (i.e., excluding doctoral programs) are being sought. We are interested in reports of studies that have used one or more of a variety of methodologies to examine clinical or other areas of nursing meant to advance knowledge in the field. Manuscripts should be no more than 10 pages, double-spaced, 12-pitch type, including references, tables, and figures. Since all papers will be subject to an expedited peer-review process, a paper's chances of being accepted will be improved if it has been reviewed and edited by someone with authorship experience, and revisions made accordingly, prior to submission. Prizes of a one-year complimentary subscription to CJNR will be awarded to the students with the three strongest papers.

The CJNR Editorial Board realizes that many student projects have not received formal IRB approval. Nonetheless, every study must meet accepted standards of ethical conduct. A number of procedures must be followed to ensure the ethical integrity of the study with regard to the treatment of human subjects. Authors are asked to include in their manuscripts a paragraph outlining the procedures that were followed to ensure the ethical integrity of the study.

Submission Deadline: October 1, 2002

Addiction & Dependence

March 2003 (vol. 35, no. 1)

In nursing and in other disciplines, addiction, dependence, and addictive behaviours and their health consequences are of growing social concern. This issue will focus on all aspects of these phenomena as they intersect with nursing practice in all health-care settings. We are interested in addiction in all its forms (e.g., tobacco, drugs, alcohol), any behaviour that results in a physiological dependency (e.g., eating disorders), the effects on individual and family well-being across the lifespan, physical and mental health outcomes, and prevention and intervention. We are also interested in individual, parental/family, and social/environmental factors that place individuals at risk or that lessen the risk of these phenomena. We are particularly interested in the testing of interventions and the factors that contribute to an intervention's success. We plan to mainly publish research reports but will consider papers on theory development and testing. We welcome investigations that use either qualitative or quantitative data or a combination of the two.

Guest Editor: Dr. Pamela Ratner

Submission Deadline: extended to October 15, 2002

Culture & Gender

June 2003 (vol. 35, no. 2)

Culture and gender have been identified as important determinants of health. For this issue, we invite papers that examine the interaction of culture and gender with other health determinants, and the influence of culture and gender on the outcomes of nursing interventions. Manuscripts that describe research studies, present a systematic review, or provide a theoretical analysis will be considered. We are particularly interested in papers that focus on innovative interventions designed to mediate the influence of culture or gender on collective health action, individual behaviour change, social environments, health-service utilization, or health status. We welcome papers describing studies undertaken either in Canada or internationally.

Guest Editors: Dr. Nancy Edwards and Dr. Judy Mill

Submission Deadline: extended to November 15, 2002

Nursing Care Effectiveness

September 2003 (vol. 35, no. 3)

In the context of the changes that are currently taking place in health-care systems, it is imperative that the effectiveness of nursing care be systemically studied and highlighted in research reports. Additionally, it is critical that the policy implications of such research be specifically addressed. For this issue of the Journal, we invite papers that examine nursing care effectiveness in terms of health outcomes for individuals, families, groups, communities, or populations and from the perspective of the cost to clients and to health-care systems. We will consider manuscripts that describe research studies, present a systematic review, discuss the implications of nursing care effectiveness research on policy, present methodological issues, or provide analysis of theoretical and/or ethical issues.

Guest Editor: Dr. Sandra M. LeFort

Submission Deadline: extended to January 15, 2003

Gerontology

December 2003 (vol. 35, no. 4)

As populations age, all disciplines and public-service sectors are beginning to address the issues of ageing from their diverse perspectives. For this issue of CJNR we invite manuscripts that present research focused on enhancing the health and life of older populations through the creation and dissemination of knowledge relevant to gerontological nursing practice and the policy, health-services delivery, and practice issues germane to optimizing the health and lives of older people. We particularly welcome papers on innovative interventions and strategies for promoting health and well-being in later life.

University of Ontario Institute of Technology

Canada's newest university, to be created in Durham Region, Ontario, was enacted by legislation in June 2002. Our university opens in September 2003 with a 21st-century vision of learning, research and service excellence. We invite you to consider joining the University of Ontario Institute of Technology as a founding member of the faculty, to help build our reputation for being student-centred, innovative and responsive, while respecting the best traditions of Canada's great established universities.

In keeping with a technology-enhanced learning environment with wireless connectivity, where every student will have a customized laptop, the University of Ontario Institute of Technology seeks faculty who strive to explore and develop new methods of program delivery.

The University of Ontario Institute of Technology is an equal opportunity employer and welcomes applications from qualified women and men including members of visible minorities, Aboriginal Peoples, and persons with disabilities. All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadians and permanent residents will be given priority.

Applications will be accepted until November 1, 2002. Applicants should provide a curriculum vitae, list of publications, statement of teaching interests, outline of their current and proposed research, and should arrange to have three confidential letters of recommendation sent on their behalf to Carolyn Byrne, Dean, School of Health Science, c/o the Director of Human Resources, University of Ontario Institute of Technology, 2000 Simcoe Street North, Oshawa, ON, L1H 7K4 or send to careers@uoit.ca.

Faculty Positions Available

The university is presently recruiting tenure-stream and contractually limited faculty at all ranks who will be required as soon as mutually agreeable, but not later than July 2003. Faculty will be required to conduct active and innovative research programs and to teach at the undergraduate and, in the near future, the graduate level. Applicants should have a PhD and a record of excellence in teaching and research. More complete information on the positions can be found at www.uoit.ca.

SCHOOL OF HEALTH SCIENCE

In collaboration with Durham College, this school will offer a BScN degree which will be required to begin practice as a registered nurse in Ontario beginning in 2005. The research focus will be on community health issues including hospitals, public health organizations and social service agencies. Please quote competition No. UOIT02-08.

The EUREKA! Fellowship
in Nursing Research

The EUREKA! Fellowship in Nursing Research at the McGill University Health Centre represents a unique opportunity for nurses in clinical practice who are passionate about finding answers to clinical questions. The Award enables a nurse to function for one year as a Nursing Research Fellow at the MUHC.

The EUREKA! Fellowship is a gift of time. The Fellow has the time and support necessary to pursue a research project. The project can be in any clinical area of nursing.

During the one-year Award, the Fellow will work in the MUHC Nursing Research Department with the support of an experienced nurse researcher and/or researchers from another discipline.

Information for Authors

The CJNR is a quarterly journal. Its primary mandate is to publish nursing research that develops basic knowledge for the discipline and examines the application of the knowledge in practice. It also accepts research related to education and history and welcomes methodological, theory, and review papers that advance nursing science. Letters or commentaries about published articles are encouraged.

Procedure: 1. Articles must be written in English. 2. Authors are requested not to put their name in the body of the text, which will be submitted for blind review. 3. Only unpublished manuscripts are accepted. 4. All research studies must have received IRB approval. 5. A written statement assigning copyright of the manuscript to the CJNR must accompany all submissions to the Journal. 6. Manuscripts should be submitted by e-mail to the Editor, c/o joanna.toti@mcgill.ca

Manuscripts

Manuscripts must be prepared in accordance with the Fifth Edition of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. Research articles must follow APA style for presentation of the literature review, research questions and hypotheses, method, and discussion. All articles must adhere to APA guidelines for references, tables, and figures. Footnotes are to be avoided.

Title page: This should include author(s) name, degrees, position, information on financial assistance, acknowledgements, address, and present affiliation. This page should also include keywords as well as a suggested running head for the article.

Abstract: Research articles must include a summary of 100–150 words describing the purpose, design, sample, findings, and implications. Theory and review papers must include a statement of the principal issue(s), the framework for analysis, and summary of the argument.

Text: The text should not exceed 20 double-spaced typed pages, including references, tables, and figures.

References: The references are listed in alphabetical order, double-spaced, and placed immediately following the text. All author names must be included for each reference. Journal names must be spelled out in full.

Tables and figures: Tables and figures should appear only when absolutely necessary, up to a maximum of four. They must be self-explanatory and summarize relevant information without duplicating the content of the text. Each table must include a short title, omit abbreviations, and be typed on a separate page. Figures must be in camera-ready form. Tables and figures should be placed at the end of the paper, after the references.

Review process and publication information: The CJNR is a peer-reviewed journal. Manuscripts are submitted to two reviewers for blind review. The first author will be notified following the review process, which takes approximately 12 weeks to complete.

Electronic copy: Authors must provide satisfactory electronic files of the accepted final version of the manuscript.

Renseignements à l'intention des auteurs

La revue CJNR est publiée quatre fois par année. Son mandat premier est de diffuser les travaux de recherche axés sur le développement des connaissances et leur mise en pratique au sein de la discipline des sciences infirmières. La revue accepte également les articles de recherche traitant d'éducation et d'histoire, ainsi que les articles sur la méthodologie, la théorie et l'analyse critique qui contribuent à l'avancement des sciences infirmières. Les lecteurs et lectrices sont invités à faire parvenir leurs commentaires sur les articles publiés dans la revue.

Modalités : 1. Les articles doivent être rédigés en anglais. 2. Pour garantir l'anonymat des auteurs pendant l'examen des articles, on demande à ceux-ci d'éviter d'indiquer leurs noms dans le corps du texte. 3. Seuls les manuscrits inédits seront acceptés. 4. Tous les projets de recherche doivent avoir reçu l'approbation d'un comité d'éthique. 5. Une déclaration de cession du droit d'auteur à la revue CJNR doit accompagner toutes les propositions d'article. 6. Les manuscrits doivent être soumis par courriel à la rédactrice en chef a/s: joanna.toti@mcgill.ca.

Manuscrits

Le manuscrit doit respecter les normes précisées dans la cinquième édition du Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association. Tous les articles de recherche doivent répondre aux critères de l'APA relativement à l'état de la question, aux questions et aux hypothèses de recherche, à la méthode suivie et à la discussion des résultats. Les figures, tableaux, illustrations et références doivent aussi obéir aux normes prescrites. Prière d'éviter les notes de bas de page.

Page titre : La page titre du manuscrit doit donner le nom, l'adresse et l'affiliation des auteurs ou auteures, ainsi que leurs diplômes, l'aide financière reçue et les remerciements. Elle doit également indiquer les mots-clés pertinents et offrir une suggestion de titre pour l'article.

Résumé : Les articles de recherche doivent comprendre un résumé de 100 à 150 mots qui expose l'objectif, la méthode, l'échantillon, les résultats et les conclusions de l'étude. Les articles théoriques et les analyses critiques doivent présenter les principaux objectifs recherchés, le cadre d'analyse et un résumé de la discussion.

Texte : Le manuscrit ne doit pas dépasser 20 pages dactylographiées à double interligne, en tenant compte des tableaux, des figures et des références.

Références : Les références doivent apparaître en ordre alphabétique, à double interligne, et faire suite au texte. Chaque référence doit préciser les noms de tous les auteurs. Les titres de revues doivent être écrits au long.

Tableaux et figures : On ne doit avoir recours aux tableaux et aux figures que dans les cas où cela est absolument nécessaire, jusqu'à un maximum de quatre. Ceux-ci doivent être suffisamment explicites et résumer les données pertinentes en évitant les redites. Chaque tableau doit porter un titre, être exempt de toute abréviation et dactylographié sur une page séparée. Les figures doivent être prêtes à photographier. Les tableaux et les figures doivent être placés à la fin de l'article, à la suite des références.

Examen des manuscrits et renseignements relatifs à la publication : La revue CJNR est fondée sur l'évaluation par les pairs. Deux réviseurs examineront le manuscrit à partir d'une copie anonyme. On avisera le premier auteur de leur décision au terme du processus, lequel nécessite douze semaines environ.

Copie électronique : Si le manuscrit est accepté, les auteurs doivent remettre une copie électronique acceptable de la version finale du texte.

CJNR

The CJNR provides a forum for the publication of research and scholarly articles relevant to nursing and health. You and your agency are invited to subscribe to this journal.

You also are invited to submit articles to the Journal. The CJNR publishes articles on clinical research, methodological issues, education research, and historical research, as well as theory and position papers that advance nursing knowledge. Information for authors and the criteria for evaluating articles can be obtained from the Managing Editor.
